

Lead Developers Needed

LINE is an award-winning learning and communications company which has been producing interactive solutions for almost 20 years. Our continued success means we're expanding our technical team.

Creative thinking is at the heart of everything we do. Our work ranges from creating Flash-based scenario driven e-learning, developing learning systems with open source software, creating fast-paced viral video trailers to writing addictive games with learning outcomes. The sky's the limit when you apply innovative thinking to every project.

Our technical team is growing in both our London and Sheffield offices. We are a close team of people from diverse backgrounds – each person valued for the capabilities they bring to their work. We regularly meet to discuss each member's development tasks, technical approach and project deliverables. We are looking for a full-time lead developer or technical consultant/analyst to join the team.

If you value honesty and a great working environment, you may well be suited to an exciting and challenging role at LINE.

Apply online @

<http://www.line.co.uk/careers/careers.htm>

Strictly no agencies

In particular we would like to hear from you if you have proven experience in developing in the following technologies:

- HTML/JavaScript and/or Flash/ActionScript in a commercial environment
- XML/SSLT enterprise and/or Object Orientated software design & development experience

Ideal candidates have experience with

- ASP
- PHP
- Java
- Previous e-learning development experience

All candidates should have sound academic background with 2.1 or higher in a computer science or equivalent and must be eligible to live and work in the UK or EU.

Successful employees can expect a competitive salary and bonus scheme.

LINE
learning & communications